Private actors can most effectively channel their support to help welcome newly arriving Afghans as they resettle in communities across the country. Specifically, the following types of support are most critically needed at this time in resettlement locations:

1. Provision of safe, appropriate temporary and permanent housing;
2. Legal assistance and services to support those who will need to file paperwork to adjust their immigration status;
3. Medical services and care;
4. Interpretation services (in Dari and Pashto); and
5. Large-scale donations of basic necessities (such as food and clothing).

Business, philanthropies, and NGOs seeking to address urgent needs may contact DHSImpact@hq.dhs.gov to let us know how your organization can help.

Organizations interested in assisting with longer-term needs, such as economic integration of those who have arrived from Afghanistan may contact AfghanPartnerships@state.gov.

How the Public Can Help

- It is the millions of people in local communities across the United States who ensure the success of the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP) by welcoming and helping integrate refugees from around the world. We encourage people who are interested in assisting arriving Afghans to reach out to their local refugee resettlement agency to donate, volunteer, or even form community sponsorship teams. There are many opportunities to be involved in welcoming Afghans and helping them to rebuild their lives in the U.S.
